The balloting was done by the method that has proved so successful in each case so far and that makes it impossible for the members of the jury to know anything about the writers of the line they are called upon to judge.

The ten best completed limericks were printed on slips of paper and passed around among the jury. Each limerick was numbered and the voting was by numbers entirely. The winning limnumbers entirely. The winning lim-erick, as completed by Miss Dunlop follows:
